

resent (v.): منزجر شدن، رنجیدن

It was almost as if writing movies had given people one more reason to hate me, or dislike or resent me.

penchant (n.): علاقه، رغبت

The most important of these tendencies are a deep passion for equality itself and a penchant for independent action.

uproarious (adj.): پرسروصدا، پر همه‌مه؛ خنده دار

Long about the time of year we call November, Athens exploded in an uproarious, joyous, naughty celebration - the Great Dionysia, or Festival of Dionysos.

This uproarious comedy is about three Brothers who are brought together by the will of their dying father.

sporadic (adj.): گاه و بیگاه، تک و توک

Later, our contact became more sporadic but we still had occasion to work together every once in a while.

counterpart (n.): هم‌تا، نظیر، قرین

His counterpart Alex McLeish, was similarly honest, and critical of his player.
